Back to Basics

Often our dog's first step on a flank is towards their sheep or last step is falling into their sheep. Either one applying pressure to our stock which can upset them at the pen, move balance on a lift, or collapse that crack we were hoping to exploit for a shed.

So I thought going Back to Basics would be a great way to start out this summer. We'll spend a day working on first and last steps of a flank and get a better understanding of how we eliminate unwanted travel and fall-in on our stops. We will also be calibrating our voice with our intentions to help ensure we ask for what we really want. This will help us learn how to ask and get a half flank.

Previous clinics were great fun with measurable improvement from dogs and handlers both at the end of the day. Lots of work and opportunity to get better. Work as many dogs as you like. The goal is to make sure you walk away with a clear understanding so you can keep working at home.

Open to 8 handlers... I keep these clinics small so we get a lot of work done and have plenty of time for questions and discussion.

Email or call to reserve your spot. Also a Facebook presence. Either Dave Imas or Catbird stockdogs.

Cost: $100 for a working spot. $35 to audit
